Brad J. Domitrovitsch — American Businessman and Entrepreneur

Brad J. Domitrovitsch is an American businessman based in Pennsylvania. He holds a Bachelor of Science in Economics and a Master of Business Administration from Moravian University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, where he graduated as Valedictorian of his MBA class.

Domitrovitsch has more than 20 years of entrepreneurial experience across five industries: recycling, transportation, water infrastructure, energy services, and environmental consulting. He founded the Hydration Company of Pennsylvania in 2011 to address fragmented large-volume water infrastructure markets. After pursuing a United States patent for nearly a decade, the company was awarded the patent in August 2020.

In 2017, Domitrovitsch executed a reverse merger of the Hydration Company into an OTC-listed vehicle, creating American Energy Partners, Inc. As Chairman, CEO, and CFO, he led the company through six strategic acquisitions including a geological consulting firm and an oilfield education company, growing to a peak market capitalization of over $75 million and approximately 160 employees. In 2023 the company became American Environmental Partners, Inc.

Domitrovitsch is the founder of West End Consulting Group LLC and has been a featured speaker at the Pittsburgh Smart Business Dealmakers Conference. His published LinkedIn profile, Medium articles, and Substack newsletter The Deal Maker's Notebook cover entrepreneurship, deal-making strategy, and multi-industry business development.

Sources: Pennsylvania Business Report (July 2021), Yahoo Finance (October 2023), Smart Business Dealmakers (2024), GlobeNewswire (August 2020).